Early one bright, summer day, when Auntie Suzie was a little girl, just about your size, her daddy said, "Auntie Suzie, we're going to get us a turkey!"

"A turkey?" She said. This is going to be fun. So, off they went to the local feed store. That's where they sell all kinds of food for all kinds of critters. They sell dog food and cat food, chicken food and duck food, cow food and horse food and of course, turkey food.

They sell fluffy, fuzzy baby chickens, soft and yellow baby ducks and guess what else - baby turkeys.

"Mr. Feed Store Man," said Auntie Suzie's daddy, "how much do you want for one of those baby turkeys?" Mr. Feed Store Man looked at him and said, "Well, since you're Auntie Suzie's daddy, I guess I can take a dollar for it."

Tom Turkey is a very special bird. He can count and say his ABC's. He is the best friend Auntie Suzie ever had until, one day, they both learn he is to be the featured dish on the Thanksgiving menu.
