THE GOSPEL
PEACE

PRESTON ALBERT

Can an ordinary citizen change the world? Can somebody with no resources work through the gauntlet of hate to proclaim a message of love? Can someone who knows nothing be given the knowledge of God? Is peace possible? What's the truth and how do we find our way to it?

These are the questions I had to ask myself when I was called upon in late 2013. I was nobody who knew nothing. My life was completely flipped upside-down in a calling like no other. I went on a quest to find the answers, ending up with more questions as I dug deeper toward the truth. This book contains my findings as I now see through the illusions of this world and I'm ready to build a new one. Peace is possible if people are willing to stand for it.

Introduction

This is a time of rebirth. We are transitioning from the Age of Pisces into the Age of Aquarius. It's the end of the age of deception and the beginning of the age of truth. With this transition, God calls on someone to guide his flock. This is where I come in. My divine purpose is to seal prophecy, re-establish the word of God, and lay the foundation for everlasting world peace.

I am two types of prophet: A Moses-style prophet as an interpreter of the law and with the authority given to me to declare God's stance on each issue, but also an Elijah-style prophet, as it's my duty to get the world ready for the millennial reign of Christ. We simply cannot have thousands of religions and sects fighting with one another for the coming of the king.

This book was written via direct revelation from source, things revealed through deep thought, meditation, study of scripture from various sources, study of history, study of science, and other resources. I speak and write with the authority given to me by the creator, but with great humility. This gospel is intended to supplement the knowledge of the previous prophets, and their works should be studied and appreciated in their own time.

Throughout this gospel there will be references to my life. These are not intended to bring attention upon myself. They are simply presented to supplement and validate prophecies from those who came before me, such as Habakkuk 2:2-3, predicting I would be busy with other activities while answering my calling. During the writing of this gospel, my life has been very intense.

Truthfully, I feel that I'm the last person in the world who I thought would be writing a book like this. In this life, I have not considered myself to be much out of the ordinary. I'm an average, lower-middle class American, working a regular job, raising a family and just trying to get by.

Modest in terms of education, I'm not nearly as prepared as I would like to be, considering the nature of this calling. None of my education has relevance to this mission. Prior to being called upon, I never attended a seminary or had significant interest in spiritual matters. My life has been rather unimpressive in achievements and we've had our fair share of ups and downs, just like anybody else.

As with many Americans, both my spouse and I work full-time, juggle childcare, diminishing pay, home and vehicle maintenance, pets, marriage, personal lives and family and health issues. In a world which isn't perfect, naturally we already carry the weight of life's daily trials and tribulations.

Despite it all, I've always tried to look at my role in matters, to see what could be learned. In each case, I do my best to forgive and move on. I've been challenged from several directions still, and if I fall down into a deep hole, I try to find my way out. Each time over the years, it's felt like I thought things would work out, but sadly they wound up not.

You'd think, that with enough going on in my life, I would be out of my mind to even consider taking on a calling of this magnitude...I thought the same thing. But, I realized, I was being requested to carry out one of the most important missions in world history. The world is currently transitioning from the fourth world into the fifth world. The fourth world was an unenlightened era of endless war and suffering due to man's falling away from source. The fifth world is the start of the age of enlightenment.

As the new world develops, things will become more peaceful and less centered on war, greed, lies, and filth. This time is not the end of the world, but a new beginning. It is the time that has been anticipated for centuries, where God will cast his spirit onto all flesh, and war becomes crossed out from the dictionary of humankind. An entire new earthly existence is manifesting, and I am a part of it. We are all a part of it. May each of you find your way, your truth, and your light.

In My Life

In my current life I have had some times of great trial and tribulation and always held myself together even when it was very challenging. This is similar to my life as David where I had to overcome overwhelming odds. I refer to David in both the first and third person, partially due to being the same soul but also recognizing that was a different life and time.

Throughout my life, I learned to do the right thing and was honest to a fault without having to be told what to do. I was never interested in small talk nor did I have any interest to pretend to be someone I was not. I did this based upon instinct and intuition. I struggled to believe in anything supernatural and was overall disgusted by what I saw being done in the name of a divine being. I could not bring myself to believe because I could not believe what I was seeing. A man of “universal love” was the basis for doctrines of discrimination. While Christ taught compassion, it seemed the most religious people I was exposed to were the least compassionate. It seemed to be a contest of who could “out-Jesus” the other.

I find myself in a similar situation. As the story is told in scripture, David is chosen while watching a few sheep. He wasn't pursuing becoming a prophet or king, he was just doing what needed to be done. I've always had this approach in my current life. Just do what needs to be done, don't worry about whose “job” it is. David was perfectly happy to do his duty watching sheep. Once called upon David developed an unquestioning allegiance to God and dedicated himself to his service.

In my current life, I have always had strong drive and work ethic, even at times to the point of self-sacrifice. When I was called upon I was just working an hourly accounting job. My wife and I had sketched plans to start our own business, which was more centered on helping people heal than making a profit. It was around this time I was called upon. I went from not really sure where I was spiritually and now as I write this every breath and effort I am making in my life is in pursuit of a higher truth trying to answer the intense calling God has given me. I have submitted myself to God's will and do so not out of fear, but out of purpose.

Then I said, "Here I am, I have come it is written about me in the scroll. I desire to do your will, my God; your law is within my heart."

-Psalm 40:7-8 NIV

My Ministry

This is my last life. I have to fight my tendencies as an old soul, and carry out the mission God sent me here to do. I must champion peace in a world at war. I have to bring light to a world gone dark. I have to bring truth to the world of lies. I have to proclaim the coming of the kingdom of heaven in a world gone to hell. That is my mission in this life.

My job is to uplift humanity as a whole and doing it requires self-sacrifice. It bothers me to no end when someone uses God's name for their own personal ambitions, especially when they turn a blind eye to the suffering of others. True leaders set the example. My job is not to rehash the sermons of the past, but to reveal unknown truths and knowledge which builds upon my predecessors. I'm most concerned with what scripture doesn't say. We know what it says, but do we really know what it means?

My message is really nothing new, just the culmination of those who came before me, plus what has been revealed to me.

Many teachers and evangelists throw accusations around saying that something isn't of sound doctrine, while they fail to grasp that the doctrines themselves are not sound. The insistence on a blind and absolute allegiance to a perverted gospel needs to stop.

During my awakening, I wasn't baptized by water, I was baptized by fire. I was asked to give up everything to stop the forces of darkness, and I was willing to, as I could not let that kind of evil persist. I must tell myself I am only anybody because I was chosen. I'm just a nobody, but God chose me to be a somebody.

Know What's Right and Do It

Most people who have a solid moral foundation know how to treat others with kindness and courtesy. This should be common sense. I don't think that I need scripture to tell me to be honest with myself and others, I just intuitively know it's the right thing to do.

Religion is often used to justify a special set of rules for certain groups, which is contrary to the teachings of the prophets. The overarching message of the prophets helps further our universal divine purpose.

God's agenda is universal love, universal charity, universal empathy, and making the world a better place. It's not an agenda about sectioning off people into particular groups and marginalizing them. Believe it or not, that same archdiocese who I contacted when all this first began, would later make the news for denouncing the movie "50 Shades of Grey" while putting lesser emphasis on the fact that the world was increasingly erupting into more chaos and suffering. It was like saying "The house is on fire! Quick! Someone do the dishes!"

Throughout the church age, power has been centralized through the suppression and perversion of information. It's time to give the power to the people and all give them access to a decent life and the pursuit of understanding. Knowledge should flow freely like water.

The Bible is not a book; it is a collection of books. The authors of the individual Gospel were not writing to be part of a bigger book, they were writing their own gospels in the context of the world in which they were called upon to teach. During my current life, I have witnessed the Bible being used to justify all sides of every issue. There is no spiritual value in memorizing a bunch of scripture, the spiritual value is understanding why the scripture reads as it does.

To Believe or Not to Believe

Over the years, I've never really believed in any particular religion and always struggled with an understanding of God. It seemed like every time I would try to find my way, there was always someone eager to point their finger at me and tell me I was doing it wrong.

I'd occasionally go to a church and sit in the pew wondering what any of it had to do with spirituality. We say the same things over and over, the doctrines, in many cases, were illogical; while one section was claiming we should not worship idols, the other seemingly wanted us idolizing Jesus Christ. It seemed like more of a social club than a holy place. I never fit in and felt like it was a waste of time.

I became challenged in this life as an atheist. In hindsight, I felt I'd made the right decisions without having to be dictated by some clergy. I would eventually see that God was testing me on my own merits before he called on me to do what he needed me to do.

The Journey Begins

Coming to acceptance was the first part of my journey, and took some time. At first, it seemed simple. I just kept a journal of what I was going through. Whenever I'd have a thought to explore, I'd notate it. It was similar to my days as a comic, keeping a pen and paper with me at all times trying to figure out what was funny. Only this time the subject matter was just a little more intense.

It wasn't until early 2014 that I started actually studying scripture. As a revenue auditor at a casino, I often found myself with down time as I waited for the count team to finish counting the money before I could begin balancing the revenues. I honestly think casinos should be called a "Shrine of Vice", because any destructive behavior is available in, or around, their vicinity. Despite the best attempts to be an "honest" business, they still take peoples' money and offer nothing but false hope in return. Come to think of it, they're like a corrupt church. Then again, at least the casino pays taxes.

In mid-2014 I became overwhelmed with the nature of the world events I was watching unfold. Knowing somehow that I would eventually be part of them, was too hard for me to fathom, so I started spending a lot of time at the local casinos (as a patron, not an employee). I was trying to distract myself.

I fell into many old bad habits. But as I did, I eventually hit a moment when I was sick and tired of trying to run and decided to hit things head on. I went full throttle getting this information and experiences onto paper, and so this book began.

The bulk of the work was done in 2015. Toward the end of that year, I began a process of purging all my darkness. I had originally thought I would already be in the process of publishing, but divine timing had other plans. Many of the issues which arose during my awakening started to resolve as I stepped into my office to perform my duties. It was also a privilege to see God at work as I transitioned into my calling and going public.

This book has been designed in a way that offers common understanding of our interactions with our creator and the world we live in. The intent is to supplement and build upon previous knowledge, and give clarification where necessary.

Although this text can serve as a guide, we must put the principles into practice for it to have its full effect. However, realize that no amount of scripture can replace a true desire to know, and have a relationship with, the divine. As a science textbook gives us knowledge of science, it is by going into the world putting our knowledge into practice to better interact with our world that it becomes useful. The same principles apply here.

All celestial servants aid the same general purposes, but the ultimate purpose is truth. The truth remains constant. Regardless of how many ways men will try to hide or pervert it, eventually the truth will come to light. How knowledge is used is an important factor. The knowledge itself is neither good nor bad, but how it's being used that matters. Nuclear technology can be used to power homes or drop bombs. We can use the technology how we see fit, but we also have the choice of whether or not to build the bomb in the first place.

Leading Up to My Awakening

I've had health issues my whole life, and around Christmas of 2012, I got sick. I had an infection and went to the doctor. They weighed me in at 297 pounds. Over the course of the next few months, I would work to radically change my life. I had gone from fast food to a plant-based diet and was exercising regularly. In the process, I was just about to break the 240 pound mark, which is a weight I hadn't seen since just after graduating high school.

I never believed in anything supernatural before, but as the weight dropped I started to feel more peaceful and was opening myself up spiritually. I wasn't sure where I was at, but after living the life of an atheist turned agnostic, then believing there was another world, I was not sure where I was heading. I had no clue as to the ultimate plan of where I would be.

My wife and I had been looking forward to a trip to the Black Hills for years. We had three weeks off of work, we had both lost significant weight, and were loving life. After years of this trip being postponed, we finally made it to Deadwood. We had a great time and vowed to come back in the future.

While we were in Deadwood though, we experienced some paranormal activity at The Bullock Hotel. I even received my first electronic voice phenomenon (EVP<sup>1</sup>). I was barely aware of any kind of medium capability at that time. I could sense the presence of spirit but not receive messages.

We had stayed at a Bed and Breakfast. The host recommended visiting the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation to see the Red Cloud Indian School on our way out of town. We decided to go there. In the museum section there was a room dedicated to the massacre at Wounded Knee. When I was in that room, I felt a distinct heaviness attached to the battle and felt a spirit present. The entity had a heavy feeling to it. I now believe it was also my soul connecting to Wounded Knee and my previous life in that area, but I wasn't unaware of it at the time.

The Gospel of World Peace

I felt guilt that the white man had slaughtered these people. I felt like the spiritual entity felt the same way. On the way out of the room, I turned in its direction and said “I didn’t do it.”

The bond that formed in that room would prove life-changing.

A message of unity for a fragmented world. A defiant spiritual affirmation for the coming Age of Aquarius. It brings harmony between science and faith, intuition and logic, pragmatism and speculation, divine and human, covering topics such as reincarnation, purpose of the Christ and unification of scientific and spiritual theories.
