Once upon a time, a boy named Peter sat at his piano, day after day, trying to read the music notes to play the "Happy Birthday" song. This day, Saturday, would be Suzy's ninth birthday and Peter had promised to play the song for her birthday party.

Saturday had rolled around all too quickly. Peter woke up to a gloomy, rainy morning. He was determined to try again to read the music notes. He sat down at the old piano and stared at those black and white keys. He tried to play the song but most of the notes he played were wrong.

Finally, his mother came in and said, "Peter, why don't you take a break for lunch? It's almost time to get ready to go to Suzy's party."
