is for ANT

Ants are little, black and fun. They march like an army but don't carry guns. Hiding food for when there is no sun, No worries though, they can lift a ton.

is for BEAVER

Beavers live in rivers and creeks. They tend to mind their business and are meek. Beavers build shelters all night making sure they won't leak. Their paddle-like tails slap the water when enemies seek.

I'm 7 feet tall with humps on my back. I'm not very pretty but my look is whack. The locals named me the "Ship of the desert," Take a ride and you won't regret it.

Gina Chiarella-Gallarelli is a graduate of Northeastern University located in Boston, MA. This is her 3rd children's book to date.

Gina was born and raised in a suburb of Boston called Beachmont, where she still resides today with her 17 year old daughter Angelina Marie. Not to mention 4 fur babies; 3 cats Oscar (Mr. handsome), Maddy (Maddog kitty cat) Vixen (baby kitty), and last but not least Gemma (pink pitty), a 14 year old pitty with the heart and soul of a puppy. All were rescued and given a 2nd chance at life.

Gina is also the author of Cutlets - A tail about friends, foes and a furever home and Cutlets and the Scat Cats Greet the Alien.
