I Release You Boy and Receive My King

He came to me, though he knew
My love for him was over and through
On one knee he tried pushing idle promises
To change
As if to the that wouldn't seem strange
I professed to him, lacking my coy
Dear boy
This is all quite touching, but what I have Left for you is, ABSOLUTELY nothing
My him/my king, HE makes me feel so alive
And anew
It wasn't overnight, but our love just grew
See, my man/my king
I love him with every red and white blood cell of my being.
I now release you boy....by boy!
And I receive my king.

Hey baby...

A Woman's Purse

There's nothing worse than going through
A woman's purse
Those clammy hands
Pushing stuff about, like it could just
Bounce back like rubber bands
My eyeshadow, eyeliner, mascara
And lip grease
You just don't know, how much
You disturbed her peace.

In Love with Two

You say you're in love with two
Are you sure this is what you want to Put my heart through
Keep talking that trash
I can bump my gums too
It's when I get silent that you should beware
You have entered EVE'S path of destruction
Of which there is no turning back
Trust me when I say
It's deeper than that death stare.

For my brother John

My big brothers, four to be exact
My father always told them, protect your sisters
Make sure they stay intact
My brother John took that to heart
Fighting all my battles
Right from the start
The fights we had with each other still makes me chuckle
Mom whooping you so bad, me trying to stop her
By grabbing the belt buckle
Tag teaming kids in school, they always asked if we were twins
Making me play rockem sockem robots
So, you could scream "I win"
So, you left for heaven, taking a big piece of my heart
The bond we share together, helps me know
We are never far apart.
Love and miss you, big brother John.
