About the Book

Incantations – A Book of Poetry by Daniel Mack, is a captivating collection of poems that delve into the depths of human emotions, experiences, and reflections. Each poem is a journey through the intricate tapestry of life, exploring themes of love, loss, hope, and the passage of time. The verses are rich with vivid imagery and profound insights, inviting readers to ponder the beauty and complexity of existence.

In this collection, you'll find poems that evoke the serene beauty of nature, the quiet moments of introspection, and the raw intensity of human connections. From the gentle whispers of the wind to the fierce storms of the soul, "Incantations" captures the essence of what it means to be alive.

The poems are both a celebration of life's fleeting moments and a meditation on the eternal truths that bind us all.

Verily

We all thought time
would end with us,
That the sky would resign in our passing

That all we knew would cease to be,
And all that had been, would define us

Yet the things we left behind,
In thought and in design,
Either faded out, or rotted on the vine

The secrets and the signs
Did not turn into wine,
All thoughts are known, as men must die

Horses

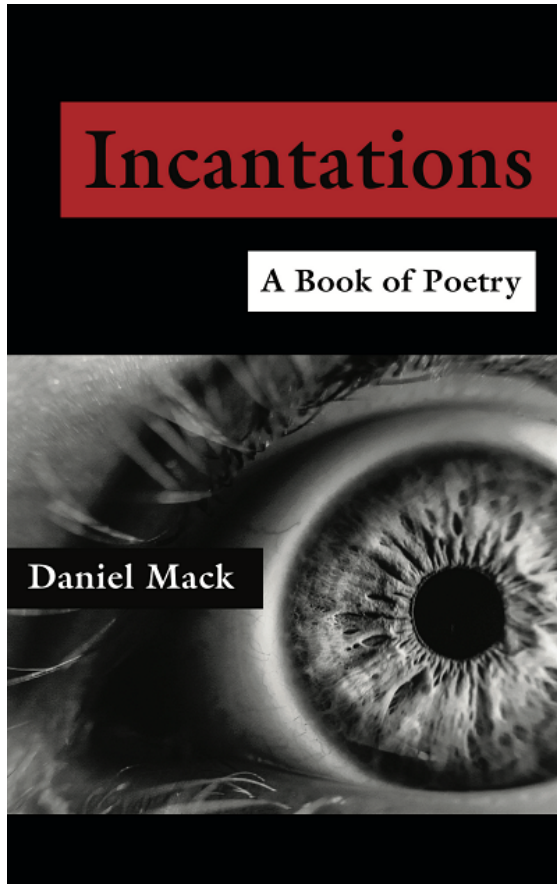

Oh to a be a horse
No kindness left at all
Round and round a racing track
The devil on your back

No more sprawling plains
Just here to entertain
Startled by the world at large
Through the confines of the yards

Oh to be a horse
No kindness left at all
Branded as a beast and a burden
In dark and lonely stalls

Heavy is the hoof of duty
Born to obligation
Freedom has a barbed wire boundary
Failure has a foundry
