Chapter I – A new friend

It was Monday, November 5, about three in the morning, when Daphne woke up out of a dream that left her in a state of awe and wonder. Daphne was a 31-year-old woman living in a small town near the northern part of London.

She had always been a person that lived in seclusion, even when she was living together with the love of her life, her husband who had died three years ago in a car accident.

When her husband died, she turned within more than before. She had lived for him more than for anybody else. He was her life. When he passed on, she started to acknowledge more and more about her true self. The self that knew things untold and could connect with the higher sources that was available for all, yet reached consciously by few. All her life she had known things, felt things and had visions, but did not know what to do with it, so she ignored it as much as she could. When he died, she went through so much pain and grief that she made an agreement with her soul. She swore never to love anybody again as much as she loved him. Deep down she knew that she would not go through life alone, but the pain of losing someone this close she did not want to feel again.

She grieved by herself, in silence. Her mother died giving birth to her and her father, who had moved overseas a year before her husband died, raised her. Within the silence that she grieved, she understood that she needed to meditate more to get back to her inner balance. As she meditated, she received clearer messages and at one point could connect with him.

His love and support helped her through the grieving process. Knowing that he was ok and working on his next soul's mission made it more easily for her to live without him.

She learned so much more about who she was on a spiritual level and started to write, what she perceived on many levels, in her journal. As she was expressing her experiences and questions on paper, she connected subconsciously with her guidance and her guidance informed her about what she needed to know at that moment in time.

Besides writing, painting was another one of her outlets. She painted animals, people and abstracts. While she painted, she forgot everything around her as she was guided by her inner-self, spirits and angels from beyond. The creations carried forward energies that radiated outwards and changed the atmosphere of the room.

Daphne's whole house was a gallery with her paintings on show, and this helped her grow in the direction needed.

She wanted to document all the lessons that spirit guided her to and through so she could write a book about it for others that were going through similar life changes and spiritual awakenings, just like her. She wanted to help others through these trials by sharing the universal knowledge that she could access, thanks to her previous life paths and past gained lessons.

The dream that had left Daphne in a state of awe and wonder had brought her to a special place that she often visited in her dreams. A place she recognized in her heart as the place called home; Moradyga.

This place was in the middle of a magical forest. A forest filled with beautiful shiny and colorful trees, plants and flowers. It was a place where animals were her best friends. Moradyga was a place beyond time. Her husband brought Daphne here for the first time, a year after he passed on. He stood by her until he felt she was strong enough to be on her own. He left a few months after. Another sad goodbye for Daphne, but she knew that she had made it so far and would continue on her life path to learn and grow until the end of time.

Moradyga was a place where unicorns gallop and soar, nature spirits sing and dance. Angels, spirits and humans visit, share, laugh, teach and learn about all the beauty and joy of life. People travelled there mostly during dreamtime when the mind created walls are down and left open for their spirit to wander free. Moradyga was a place hard to remember, yet easy to imagine. Everything you wish for from the heart is manifested in Moradyga. Everything you hope for from the purity of your heart is presented to you when you least expect it.

Daphne manifested this special place with a tree house that keeps others out and away, and allows her seclusion with the animals that belong to her spirit. Within the peace and serenity that she always craved for and could only find fully on Moradyga, she found the happiness and beauty within that allowed her to be the person she truly was.

Her tree house was small and cozy with the scent of roses. She had a couch, a bed and a table with two chairs. There were no things laying around or stored in closets. Whenever she needed something, she manifested it for the time needed and had it dissolve to nothing when she was done with it.

As she was relaxing in the green grass in front of her tree house, she manifested a pink rose in her long brown wavy hair. A little white bunny hopped towards her and peacefully smelled the rose and hopped further to play with some other bunnies that were chasing each other. Daphne smiled as she watched them play. At peace, she had no wishes or questions.

All of a sudden, she heard a noise. Something that was strange in her world, as she loved peace and quiet. The rabbits were startled by it and ran off into the forest. The noise came closer and closer. As it came closer, the noise sounded like wind. She looked up and saw this whirlwind heading her way. A whirlwind that left all trees, leaves, flowers, animals and plants untouched and came straight to Daphne to grab her and take her away within seconds after spotting it. Before she even could panic, she was released into a place that was unknown to her. It was light and beautiful and was crowded with other people living together and enjoying themselves.

Dazed she looked around at the different houses, people and things that she never had seen before. Seconds later, the whirlwind came back again and brought her to a little blue stone castle on a small hill, into a room that was dark filled with the energy of sadness and loneliness beyond belief.

Daphne could not see a thing and started to panic. As she panicked, she forgot to stay within her strength and powers that helped her manifest and create whatever her heart longed for. She lost connection with her heart as her mind brought thoughts and ideas to her filled with fear and anxiety. She started to walk slowly while she was trying to feel where she was. Hysterically she cried and hoped to be taken away again to her place of peace and quiet. She could not understand what brought her here and why. Suddenly, she felt fabric that was thick and heavy. She pulled on it and she felt it move, a curtain that kept the daylight from entering the room. As she pulled it open, the daylight filled the room and finally she could see where she was.

It was a small room with only a big wooden bed in it. The walls were painted black with shiny little stars on it. The walls caught her attention for a second, as it looked like the Earthly night skies, peaceful and endless. As her eyes were scanning the new environment, she saw the shape of someone tall under the blankets, but could not see whom it was. She could see and hear this person breathing and was surprised that her loud cry did not wake him or her up.

Frozen she stood there for minutes, not knowing what to do. She turned and looked out of the window and saw the village that the whirlwind had brought her to, about a mile away from where she was now. Between the village and the little castle, you could only see one dirt road; no trees, flowers, bushes, or people, there was nothing.

She looked back at the person and started to realize that she needed to calm down to understand things and manifest things again. As she calmed down, she connected to the person on the bed, and felt it was a man, a lonely man, dreaming while being in Moradyga. She started to wonder why she was there and what the whirlwind was that had made her travel beyond the speed of light.

The energy of the man did not feel scary to Daphne, which made her relax more and connect deeper to his soul, to understand why she was there. As she did, he started to wake up. His back was facing her when he woke up. He pulled the blanket off his head and dazed he turned around and saw Daphne.

Her presence startled him and made him sit up straight in bed instantly. As he pulled his blond hair from his face, he asked her in a deep voice “Who are you? What are you doing here?”

Daphne’s breath was captured for a few seconds as the appearance of this man and the sound of his voice brought her back three years in time, to the last time she was with her husband just minutes before he passed on. He looked completely different and his voice sounded much deeper than his did. The energy of soul recognition that accompanied his presence and essence, made her warm inside.

It was obvious to her that he did not feel that recognition as he was in a state of panic and felt she was trespassing.

Softly she spoke, with her heart racing, “I was brought here. I do not know why I am here. There was a whirlwind that had taken me to that village.” She pointed to the village that you could see through the window and continued, “And then I was here, faster than you can imagine.” The man looked at her with his dark blue eyes and then looked down and said softly, “That cannot be true.” “What cannot be true?” Daphne asked curiously and in a louder voice. “That you are here, that I found you and brought you here, into my castle,” he replied slowly and a little louder.

He took a deep breath and started to explain whom he was and what happened during his dreamtime.

His name was Justin and he was a 26-year-old man from London. He told her that he always travels consciously to Moradyga ever since his mother passed over and brought him there to help him with his grieving process. He said that he had asked before he went to sleep, to meet the one closest to his soul as he had felt this important change within himself when he re-connected with his heart.

Wilhelmina G.I. McKittrick

Daphne felt like she was floating, as she knew now why he felt so familiar, like family. In his presence she felt so safe and at home, just like when she was alone in her little tree house.

He asked her if she recognized him, and she nodded, a little shy but happy. She explained that she recognized his essence, but did not feel much more than that because of the overwhelming sensation that she was still experiencing in her heart, ever since that whirlwind brought her to him.

He came and sat on the edge of the bed and was looking straight into her eyes with the deepest love and warmth she had ever felt. He asked her if she wanted to take a seat next to him as he felt he needed to tell her a little more, and was hoping that she could calm down while he shared more with her.

Daphne sat next to him and he started to share "The ones that have found Moradyga visit here, just like many people from Earth, to rest, experience and learn the deeper meaning of life. To enjoy, help others and receive support whenever needed, as you know. My mother shared with me that the beauty and splendor that Moradyga can give you goes beyond most human perceptions. You can see and appreciate the beautiful nature and all of the things you can manifest, yet you cannot find the bridges that will lead you to the higher wonders of this magical place that lays millions of light years beyond planet Earth, unless you connect fully with your complete essence and soul. Once you have reached that point in life on Earth, grieving will be non-existent. In fact, nothing attached to the lower energies will be felt anymore. No pain, fear, frustration, anger, doubt, guilt and so on. My mother taught me that when I re-connected with her on Moradyga. Ever since I learned about that, I have been working on re-connecting with my heart and soul.

She also told me that once I was ready to let go of the sadness of losing her, I would find the people that belong to my soul. I would find the people that I have known for many lifetimes and have shared many experiences with, with as goal to reach full-circle when the time has gone.”

Daphne did not understand what he meant by "when the time had come." Therefore, he explained that the Earth will undergo major changes perceived by humanity during 2008 through 2012, and the time would come for humanity to stand tall within the changes and turmoil that will accompany the shift in consciousness. This will happen more than once, and preparation will be required.

During all these various shifts that will have an effect within our atmosphere, it will be important to remain within the loving energy of our highest ability and frequency. The many soul connections we all have with others that have chosen to be here on Earth at this time will be easy to find, as the like-minded souls will have a feeling of coming home. It is important to reach full self-awareness and full connection with your heart and higher self.

You do not have to exchange words with the ones that have achieved that and belong to your soul, as they already know what needs to be done. The ones that you have walked besides for many life times and existences, know you and your main mission and do not need explanations, approval nor justifications on any level.

Daphne was thrilled and full of love for Justin as she recognized his essence and knew that she was very close to reaching that full heart connection and clear connection with her higher self. She knew about the Earth changes and the ascension the Earth was going through, and understood why he said, "major changes perceived by mankind" as the ascension was not known by many but perceived as such by many. She knew that the Earth was being re-integrated and restructured within the galaxy and the surrounding universes, and that Earth needed to regain her balance in order to function fully within the higher frequencies that were now coming in. It was the end of 2007 now, and hearing these timelines startled her for a second and wondered for a moment what she would experience during this period of drastic change.

Sensitive and aware as she was, she had been able to follow the many shifts that came through the grid to aid in the elevation of the frequency of the Earth and all her inhabitants. Daphne knew what major change was about, but not in detail. She could just sense it, almost taste it. However, she never had investigated this because she was in peace and trust that whatever she needed to know, that would aid or be of importance for her personal life path, would come to her one way or another.

Justin knew more about the changes Earth would go through, as it was his task to know. Daphne recognized him as the leader that would gather the lost ones and bring them home. Home would be the full connection with their heart and higher self. Once home, they will know their tasks and missions.

She realized that she was in his home now to be guided to her last trial that would bring her to her home. As she ran these thoughts through her mind, Justin smiled and confirmed her thoughts with a short nodding of his head. Daphne realized that he was telepathically in tune with her.

“So you asked to meet me,” Daphne said, and continued “but why did the whirlwind stop in the village first?”

Justin replied, “That must have happened when I woke up for a few seconds. I must have stopped the motion of the wind right there and then and helped it pick up again when I re-entered that level of consciousness as I dozed off again.

You must understand that this is the first time that this has ever happened to me. The sadness and loneliness that I am sure you have sensed here are the old energies that had accompanied me until today. It is still lingering here as it was so thick and strong and I have not cleansed my home yet."

"What happened today?" Daphne asked.

"Well," Justin started to explain as he looked deep into her dark brown eyes, "today I neutralized a lot of old energies within my genes that had kept me stuck within the energies of the old world. I released all the lower energies and transmuted it with the highest energies of the new world. After I did that, I felt the full connection with my heart and higher self and knew it was time to connect with the one closest to my heart. And now you are here."

He took a deep breath again and his eyes were filled with tears of joy and love. Daphne moved closer and hugged him tight. Without warning, she was taken back to Earth. She woke up in her bed in a state of awe and wonder, as her alarm clock went off.

Everything she experienced on Moradyga stayed within her memory. Sometimes it was hard to stay awake and present on Earth, as the beauty and wonder of Moradyga was calling her. However, she knew that it was important to fully live in the here and now, and that her presence on Earth was as important as her presence on Moradyga.

She knew she would meet Justin again, and it would happen very soon. She was grateful that he found her and happy that it was time to move to higher grounds.

Chapter II – Going to work

Daphne did not have a steady job for a living. She worked on a spiritual level with people in need and worked as a gateway guardian and energy re-director to help the Earth go through the needed changes. She did not advertise her work but worked with the people that came on her path mostly via word of mouth. Her husband had left her with enough money to give her the freedom to do this.

Today she is going to teach people more about the role of a gateway guardian and the present changes the Earth is going through. After that, she has a coaching session planned. She guides people with the tools that were available for her to reach self-awareness and ultimately connect with their higher selves.

Meeting Justin had made her feel as if she was floating and she realized that it was important to ground her again, so she could better accomplish her work.

She was sharing her spiritual knowledge at a spiritual center in London. When she talked and shared with people, all her shyness disappeared, and the quiet person she normally was changed into a person that could talk on and on about the subjects at hand, without any hesitations, insecurity or doubt.

She got ready to leave and drove to London. As she was driving, her mind drifted off to Justin again, and she smiled. What a special night she had had and how this will change the rest of her life. Daphne was happy to arrive at the center and shift her thoughts from Justin to the here and now.

As she entered the room she always uses for her meetings, twenty people were already waiting for her. They were speaking to one and other as she came in and said good morning. Most of the people that were there, she already knew from previous lectures and gatherings. She noticed three new faces.

She greeted everyone and started with introducing herself to the new people.

“Today we are going to talk a little bit more about the role of a gateway guardian. You have all found this interesting for different reasons. Some of you are close to embracing this role yourself and will know this when you are ready. The Earth is encompassed by power centers similar to our bodies are encompassed by chakras. The chakras are the generators that help manifest our bodies. Our bodies have eight main chakras: seven in the body and one main chakra just above our heads that keeps us Eearth bound. The Eearth herself carries eight main power centers: seven spread across the land and ocean and one in the very core of her. The smaller power centers are as our smaller chakras spread all across our bodies. These chakras are connected by meridians, meridians that can be compared to the ley lines that are a part of the

Wilhelmina G.I. McKittrick

Eearth. For those who are not familiar with ley lines, they are like the vanes of the Eearth, carrying important energy flows to nourish, stimulate, activate and create all that is a part of the planet, straight from its source, the core, the eighth power center of our planet. Some of these ley lines have been inactive, due to energy blockages created by the acts of humanity and due to the natural state of the Eearth.

The ascension has brought in a new vibration. This vibration has being implemented into the human bodies and into everything that exists on this planet. The Earth and everything that exists on and within this planet, including us human beings, are all going through massive inner changes, a massive transformation.

Outer universes have been under similar influences as the ascension is not one that affects our solar system solely. It goes far beyond that. Yet the frequencies of certain planets were already higher than our own and the inhabitants of these planets have been motivating us and assisting us in silence through the power of intent, telepathic communications, crop circles and teachings when asleep.”

She had to smile again, as Moradyga and Justin popped into her mind.

Daphne tried to stick with her tasks and continued. “To go back to the ley lines, now that the frequencies are changing certain blockages are naturally being released, just like our own. However, some blockages require our help. The gateway keepers and energy re-directors that have felt their calling are helping. Their actions are like the tools an acupuncturist uses to release blockages within the physical body. Their body functions like a portal, which you can compare to the needles of the acupuncturist, that pulls in the needed energy from the sources that are available to them and redirect those through their hands and or feet, or with the help of enhancement tools like wands, staffs and certain crystals and gemstones.

The gateway keepers carry the responsibility to open and close certain portals when needed. They have taken the responsibility for spreading their light within love for healing, teachings and guidance.

Energy re-directors carry similar responsibilities; just like the gateway keepers, but are translators of the grids energies. They can sense it and are 'wired' to transmute certain flows through embodiment."

The people present were listening quietly and had no questions.

"Let's take a little break and drink some tea or coffee for ten minutes," she suggested.

Her cell phone rang and it was Linda. Linda was a woman that Daphne has been coaching for the past few weeks. Linda had to cancel today's session, as her daughter was sick. She would call Daphne as soon as her daughter felt better again. Daphne told her that she would wait for her call to reschedule. She rejoined the others at the table with tea and coffee.

Daphne was pouring some tea for herself when an older woman with beautiful half long gray hair and dark blue eyes, walked over and said, "Hi Daphne. My name is Anna. I just wanted to thank you for sharing all this with us. I had no intention of coming today. My friend," she said pointing at a woman in the room, "asked me this morning to come with her. She has asked me before, but I never felt the interest to come. This morning it was different. I came out of a deep sleep and woke up early. Even though I did not remember my dreams, I felt that something important had shifted within me. When Clarabelle called to ask me to join her, I felt it was time to go and see that person whom she always speaks of highly. She may not have told you, but Clarabelle has learned so much from you, and you have given her so many tools to work with over the past two years that made her change rapidly and become closer to her heart. I saw her change, and she thanks you for it. My sister died a few years ago, and that made me close of anything that reminded me of her. I simply could not cope with the pain of losing her. Spirituality was her focus in life. That is why I never wanted to come here."

"I see," Daphne said understandingly. "I am glad you made the leap today to conquer your fears, as you know fear is only blocking us from truly living."

"You are right dear," Anna said. "It is really time to move forward now, and I finally feel I am ready to do so. Hearing you speak about all this is still a little confusing to me, as I have not read or listened to anyone about these subjects touched today, but I can feel the truth of the knowledge resonating within me. It feels like coming home finally.”

“I understand what you are saying,” Daphne replied smiling. Anna had something very familiar about her, but Daphne could not pin point what that was.

“The reason I wanted to talk to you personally,” Anna continued, “is that I wanted to ask you if you do individual coaching as well.”

“Yes I do”, Daphne replied, “let’s talk about that further after class.”

Daphne called everyone together again and started the second and final session of the day.

Afterwards Anna came to her and they sat down together.

“Thank you again for sharing Daphne. I really would love to have you guide me through my present changes.”

“I would love to guide you Anna, as a matter of fact, I have time right now if that suits you, as my appointment cancelled an hour ago.” Anna looked surprised and smiled. “Well it must be time then for me to start straight away. Can you explain a little bit more about your coaching work?” Anna asked.

Wilhelmina G.I. McKittrick

"Of course" Daphne said, and started to explain what Anna could expect. "I only work three days a week," she explained, "Monday, Wednesday and Friday. With other people, I work as a Light coach and bring forward the guidance to reach full self-awareness to the point that contact with your higher self is made possible and achieved. During the sessions with you, I will analyze what is holding you back from reaching full self-awareness, I will hand out tools, show you exercises to help release old burdens and conditionings, which are stopping you from reaching full circle within. Coming full circle with your true self is needed to make the connection with your higher self.

During coaching sessions, you will be guided energetically to connect with your higher self. The higher self is the source that is in direct connection with your soul, the universe and all that is. It contains universal knowledge and understanding of your true calling and missions, and will help you achieve true overall balance; based upon love and light that will ultimately help you live a life of fulfillment, love and joy. As human beings, we all have the strength and the ability to achieve this connectivity, you have already felt the start of it and that is very exciting".

Anna asked, "How long does each session last?"

"An hour" Daphne replied.

"Good". Anna said. "I am supposed to meet my nephew for lunch today."

“Ok then let’s get started” Daphne said.

An hour went by unnoticeably, until they were interrupted by Anna’s cell phone that rang. “Oh dear,” Anna startled. “I was supposed to meet him already ten minutes ago, please excuse me,” and she picked up the phone. Anna talked to her nephew and apologized for not showing up just yet. She explained where she was and her nephew replied that he was still on his way to meet her and would pass the center and could pick her up. It would take another five minutes before he would be there. Relieved Anna hung up the phone. “I hate to miss appointments,” she said. “A good thing my nephew always understands and is running late himself. Things are flowing so naturally today, it is amazing.”

Daphne apologized for forgetting the time as well. She just is so carried away when she is working from the heart, and forgets the time often.

Daphne suggested to end the session for today as Anna’s nephew would be there any minute now. Anna thanked her and they made a new appointment for later that week. They hugged each other and Anna left.

This novel is about a woman named Daphne, who went through many changes that brought her to greater self-awareness and clarity about one of her important life missions: helping planet Earth and her inhabitants to a frequency change that would shift conscious awareness for all. She goes to a special place during dreamtime called Moradyga, meets a special man, and encounters wondrous experiences and changes, which leads to important ascension shifts for Earth and beyond.
